FROM BEN'S DESK

What's happening?

As we welcome the first signs of spring in Michigan, I'm excited to share with you our spring line of titles and the thought process behind them.

At Cherry Lake, we believe that a book can be both a tool for learning and a source of joy. When creating our books, we recognize the struggles that students with significant learning loss face as well as the importance of enjoying what they are reading, which is why our titles not only educate and help bridge that lingering pandemic gap, but also inspire a lifelong love of reading in every child.

Our spring line continues to prioritize engaging topics while offering a large selection of titles with foundational literacy skills for beginning or struggling readers. From new additions to our curriculum-aligned decodable books (Little Science Stories, Little Math Stories) to Hi-Lo titles that explore celebrations around the world (How the World Celebrates), to books that help break down complex topics using decoding strategies and feature dyslexic-friendly fonts (Weird Animal Science: The Breakdown), our spring line continues to prioritize engaging topics while offering a large selection of titles with foundational literacy skills for beginning or struggling readers. We've worked with literacy specialists, curriculum developers, and impressively qualified editors creating resources based on your and your students' needs.

As spring blooms, I invite you to explore our full catalog and connect with us on social media to discover how we support independent reading. Thank you for your partnership in nurturing young readers. Together, we can help students enhance their literacy skills, and help foster a lifelong love of reading, setting them up for success this summer and into the coming school year.

Wishing you a wonderful spring and a rejuvenating summer,

Ben Mondloch

P.S. I'd love to hear your thoughts on supporting struggling readers! Drop me a line and share your ideas.
